ORDER

13 I. FACTS AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

14 This case arises out of a homeowners' association foreclosure sale. In 2007, Rita 15 Wiegand purchased real property in Las Vegas, Nevada, giving the lender a promissory note for 16 $284,200 secured by a deed of trust ("the DOT"). In 2013, the Tuscalante Homeowners 17 Association ("the HOA") sold the property at auction to K&P Homes ("K&P") for $40,000. In 18 2014, Bank of America assigned the note and DOT to Christiana Trust ("the Trust"). The Trust 19 sued Wiegand and K&P in this Court for unjust enrichment and to quiet title, i.e., for a 20 declaration that the DOT still encumbers the property because (among other reasons) the sale did 21 not comport with due process. K&P filed a Counterclaim to quiet title and filed a Third-Party
22 Complaint against Wiegand. The Court granted the Trust's motion to dismiss the Counterclaim,

1 anticipating that SFR Investments Pool I, LLC v. U.S. Bank, N.A., 334 P.3d 408 (Nev. 2014) did 2 not apply retroactively.

3 K&P asked the Court to certify the retroactivity question to the Nevada Supreme Court.
4 The Court granted the motion, because the issue was potentially dispositive of the quiet title 5 claim. Earlier this year, the Nevada Supreme Court answered the certified question in the 6 affirmative, i.e., that SFR Investments Pool I does apply retroactively. In the meantime, 7 however, the Court of Appeals had decided Bourne Valley Court Trust v. Wells Fargo Bank, 8 N.A., 832 F.3d 1154 (9th Cir. 2016), holding that the previous opt-in notice scheme under 9 Chapter 116 was facially unconstitutional under the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth 10 Amendment. The Court had previously rejected the due process argument, but Bourne Valley
11 appeared to require the Court to reconsider and quiet title in favor of Plaintiff. See Bank of N.Y.
12 Mellon v. Ravenstar Invs., LLC, No. 3:17-cv-116, 2017 WL 2588088, at *3–4 (D. Nev. June 14, 13 2017) (Jones, J.). The Court noticed the issue when the parties notified the Court of the issuance 14 of the Nevada Supreme Court’s opinion answering the certified question. The Court therefore 15 ordered K&P to show cause why title should not be quieted in Christiana Trust’s favor. The 16 parties have briefed the issue, and the Court now addresses it.

17 II. DISCUSSION

18 A. The Precedential Value of *Bourne Valley

19 K&P argues that Bourne Valley does not control because the case “is not complete—it 20 was remanded for further proceedings.” But the fact that Bourne Valley was remanded (in the 21 usual manner) “for proceedings consistent with this opinion” does not imply that the issues 22 decided are not yet binding in that case or throughout the Circuit. It simply means that the 23 district court is to proceed to judgment in the particular case in accordance with the legal rule(s)

1 declared by the Court of Appeals. The issue—the unconstitutionality of the previous opt-in 2 notice scheme under Chapter 116—has been finally decided and is binding on this Court. The 3 Supreme Court has denied certiorari in Bourne Valley, and the mandate has issued.

4 B. Interpretation of Chapter 116

5 Next, K&P argues that even when the unconstitutional opt-in provisions of Chapter 116
6 are severed, Nevada Revised Statutes section (“NRS”) 116.31168(1) previously incorporated
7 NRS 107.090’s notice requirements. But both this Court and the Court of Appeals have ruled 8 that NRS 116.31168(1) did not incorporate subsections (3) and (4) of NRS 107.090, and that 9 even if it had done so, that would not have required notice to first deed of trust holders. See
10 Bourne Valley Court Tr., 832 F.3d at 1159; US Bank, N.A. v. SFR Invs. Pool 1, LLC, No. 3:15-
11 cv-241, 2016 WL 4473427, at *5 & n.1 (D. Nev. Aug. 24, 2016) (Jones, J.). Even if this Court 12 were to reconsider its own rulings—which it does not—it would be bound by the Court of 13 Appeals’ ruling on the issue.

14 K&P notes that Judge Boulware has certified to the Nevada Supreme Court the question 15 of whether the pre-October 1, 2015 version of NRS 116.31168(1) required notice to the first 16 deed of trust holder. If the answer were “yes,” then the notice scheme would presumably not be 17 facially unconstitutional, and the facts of notice in this case would have to be litigated. But a 18 plain reading of the statutes and both the objective and subjective legislative intent behind the 19 2015 amendments lead to the inescapable conclusion that notice was not previously required.
20 See, e.g., Nationstar Mortg., LLC v. SFR Invs. Pool 1, LLC, No. 2:15-cv-583, 2017 WL 21 3526256, at *2 (D. Nev. Aug. 16, 2017) (Jones, J.) (citing US Bank, N.A., 2016 WL 4473427, at 22 *5 & n.1).

1 A plain reading of NRS 107.090 indicates that even if fully incorporated into NRS
2 116.3168, notice to a first deed of trust holder was not required thereunder, because the statute 3 required notice only to those who opted in and to “[e]ach other person with an interest whose 4 interest or claimed interest is subordinate to the deed of trust,” and a deed of trust is not 5 subordinate to itself. Nev. Rev. Stat. § 107.090(3)(b) (emphasis added). In other words, even the 6 total incorporation of NRS 107.090 would not require notice to first deed of trust holders. The 7 previous incorporation statute read, “The provisions of NRS 107.090 apply to the foreclosure of 8 an association’s lien as if a deed of trust were being foreclosed.” Id. § 116.31168(1) (2005) 9 (emphasis added). It did not read, “The provisions of NRS 107.090 apply to the foreclosure of 10 an association’s lien, except that a deed of trust holder is also entitled to the notice that 11 subordinate lienholders would be entitled to were the deed of trust itself being foreclosed.”
12 Something like the latter emphasized language would be required to conclude that deed of trust 13 holders were entitled to the same notice under Chapter 116 that subordinate lienholders were 14 entitled to under Chapter 107.

15 As this Court has noted, the objective legislative intent clearly indicates that notice was 16 not previously required, because the Nevada Legislature amended NRS 116.31162–.31163 in 17 2015 to provide for notice to deed of trust holders. And the subjective legislative history—an 18 analysis the Court now undertakes for the first time, because although it is not the Court’s 19 preferred method of statutory interpretation, another court may find it important—leaves no 20 doubt that it was the intent of the Nevada Legislature when adopting the 2015 amendments to 21 Chapter 116 (via Assembly Bill 240 (“AB 240”) and companion Senate Bill 306 (“SB 306”)) to 22 add a notice requirement that did not previously exist. See Nev. Ass. Jud. Subcomm. Hr’g, Mar.
23 19, 2015, available at http://nvleg.granicus.com/MediaPlayer.php?clip_id=3847. At a time

1 when an early draft version of AB 240 would have gone so far as to require judicial foreclosure
2 under Chapter 116, Vice Chair of the Assembly Judiciary Subcommittee David Gardner testified
3 that he and his co-sponsors might amend AB 240 to replace the judicial foreclosure requirement
4 with changes to the notice requirements that would provide due process to first deed of trust 5 holders. See id. 11:00–11:49.

6 The bill was indeed so amended, according to the testimony of SB 306 co-sponsor 7 Senator Aaron Ford. See Nev. Sen. Jud. Comm. Hr'g, Apr. 7, 2015, available at 8 http://nvleg.granicus.com/MediaPlayer.php?clip_id=4205 (“Because [under the Nevada
9 Supreme Court’s 2014 interpretation of NRS 116.3116] a foreclosure of an HOA’s superpriority 10 lien extinguishes the first mortgage lien on a home and on other subordinate liens, it is important 11 that those lienholders receive notice of the HOA’s foreclosure that is sufficient to enable those 12 lienholders to protect their interest.”). It is inconceivable that Senator Ford would have made 13 that statement if he perceived that such notice was already required. Senator Ford explained to 14 Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Greg Brower that the reason for the notice provisions was 15 to give lienholders the opportunity to prevent the loss of a several-hundred-thousand-dollar lien
16 via an auction for a few thousand dollars—a common occurrence. See id. 16:55–17:30. General 17 Counsel for the Federal Housing Finance Agency (“FHFA,” the federal statutory conservator of 18 Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac) testified that notice to lienholders was a “core issue” to his 19 agency’s support of the bill; although the FHFA was opposed to the extinguishment of a first 20 mortgage via an HOA foreclosure as a general matter, SB 306 would avoid that result as a 21 practical matter because of the new notice requirements. See id. 29:00–46:00. The issue of the 22 need for notice to deed of trust holders in order to avoid the “problematic” inequity of the 23 extinguishment of large liens via the foreclosure of comparatively tiny liens was stressed

1 throughout the hearing in exchanges between Chairman Brower and representatives of both the 2 banking and HOA industries. (See id. passim).

3 Senator Ford testified at a later hearing that “Section 2 . . . adds a requirement that the 4 notice of default and election to sell must include a detailed and itemized statement of the 5 amounts due to the association and must be mailed to each holder of a recorded security interest, 6 again addressing the notice issue and the specificity issue that were the main contentions of 7 disagreement.” See Nev. Ass. Jud. Subcomm. Hr’g 2:03:35–2:03:57, Apr. 28, 2015, available at 8 http://nvleg.granicus.com/MediaPlayer.php?clip_id=4497. He also testified that section 3 of the 9 bill “eliminates the current requirement that security holders must notify the association of their 10 interest in order to receive notice.” Id. 2:04:43–2:04:51 (emphasis added).

11 In summary, both the objective and subjective legislative intent, along with a plain 12 reading of the previous statutes, compel the conclusion that notice was not previously required 13 outside of the constitutionally insufficient opt-in procedure and publication.

14 C. The “Return Doctrine”

15 Next, K&P argues that the sale in this case is saved by Nevada’s “return doctrine.” That 16 is, although the 1993 opt-in version of Chapter 116’s notice scheme was ruled unconstitutional in 17 Bourne Valley, the previous version required the HOA to give notice without an opt-in 18 requirement. See Nev. Rev. Stat. § 116.31168 (1991) (“The association must also give 19 reasonable notice of its intent to foreclose to all holders of liens in the unit who are known to 20 it.”). K&P argues that under the return doctrine, an unconstitutional statute reverts to its latest 21 constitutional version, see We the People Nev. ex rel. Angle v. Miller, 192 P.3d 1166, 1176 (Nev.
22 2008), so the Court should assess the constitutionality of the HOA’s sale in this case under the 23 1991 version of NRS 116.31168. The Trust argues that the doctrine does not even exist in the

1 way K&P suggests. Even presuming that it does, the Court rejects the argument for reasons
2 given by another judge of this District. See PNC Bank, N.A. v. Wingfield Springs Cmty. Ass’n, 3 No. 3:15-cv-349, 2017 WL 4172616, at *3 (D. Nev. Sept. 20, 2017) (Du, J.).

4 Upon even closer examination, the Court is convinced that the 1991 version of NRS
5 116.31168 is also insufficient under the Due Process Clause. First, the previous statute only 6 required notice of the “intent to foreclose,” Nev. Rev. Stat. § 116.31168 (1991), e.g., via a notice 7 of default and election to sell. The Due Process Clause, however, requires “[n]otice by mail or 8 other means as certain to ensure actual notice” of the “proceeding which will adversely affect the 9 liberty or property interests of any party,” e.g., via a notice of sale. Mennonite Bd. of Missions v.
10 Adams, 462 U.S. 791, 800 (1983) (“[A] mortgagee’s knowledge of delinquency in the payment 11 of taxes is not equivalent to notice that a tax sale is pending.”). Second, the Due Process Clause
12 requires notice not only to those lienholders “who are known,” Nev. Rev. Stat. § 116.31168
13 (1991), but to all lienholders whose “name[s] and address[es] are reasonably ascertainable.”
14 Mennonite Bd. of Missions, 462 U.S. at 800. Because the 1991 version of NRS 116.31168
15 permitted foreclosure without reasonable notice of the time and place of sale to all lienholders 16 whose identities and addresses were reasonably ascertainable, but only notice of the bare intent 17 to foreclose to those lienholders who were already known, the return doctrine cannot validate the 18 foreclosure here even assuming the doctrine applies precisely as K&P argues it does.

19 D. State Action

20 Finally, K&P argues that the Court should not follow rulings by the Court of Appeals as 21 to state law issues where the Nevada Supreme Court has since issued contrary rulings. The 22 Court agrees with that statement as a general matter. See Erie R.R. Co. v. Thompkins, 304 U.S.
23 64, 78 (1938). And it is correct that the Nevada Supreme Court has ruled that Chapter 116

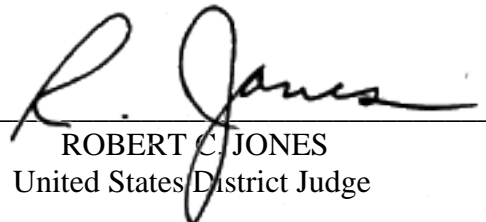

1 foreclosures do not constitute state action so as to implicate the Due Process Clause, disagreeing
2 with Bourne Valley. See Saticoy Bay LLC Series 350 Durango 104 v. Wells Fargo Home Mortg.,
3 388 P.3d 970, 973–74 & n.5 (Nev. 2017). But the issue of state action under the Due Process
4 Clause is indisputably an issue of federal law. See, e.g., Marshall v. Sawyer, 301 F.2d 639, 646
5 & n.5 (9th Cir. 1962) (citing Burton v. Wilmington Parking Auth., 365 U.S. 715 (1961)). The 6 Nevada Supreme Court of course has the power to rule on federal issues wherever it has 7 jurisdiction over a case, but this Court must adhere to the rulings of the Court of Appeals on 8 federal issues. Even where federal appellate law is silent on an issue, a state court’s opinion on 9 an issue of federal law is only potentially persuasive, not binding; and where the Court of 10 Appeals has actually ruled on the federal issue, as here, this Court may not even consider a 11 contrary state court ruling. See Bittaker v. Enomoto, 587 F.2d 400, 402 n.1 (9th Cir. 1978).
